

We have entered into the year of double portions and new positioning, so what do we make of it?

Where to start?

Having been blessed enough to make it into the New Year people should tap themselves on the shoulder as clearly you must have been doing something right. So do not shy away from reflecting upon the year that was...2019. Look at all the right decisions you took that steered you in the right direction in the past year, but also look at all the blunders of the past year and learn from them.

What is next?

Now you sit down and be honest with yourself. You start thinking about the journey ahead and start prophesying upon your life. Challenge yourself to be an even better version of yourself than the version that was. There are many ways of developing your goals for this New Year, use tools and guidelines available to you on Google and other sources. Then commit. Visualise all that you desire, have faith in your ability to make those desires a reality and take the decision to make it happen. Next take action, for nothing beats implementation. As the year runs ahead, remember to review your progress and assess those goals. Make the necessary corrections and monitor, monitor, monitor.

What to expect from Enviroswitch?

In short, the first thing to expect is consistency and growth. Some formulas need not change when they are working, but just like you, we will be setting new goalposts that align with our overall vision and mission, never deterring from #swiftly switching environments through quality service.

This serves as a great honour as in a month's time we will be turning 3 years old. Many small businesses fail to make it this far so we acknowledge that we have been blessed with a work ethic that has brought us results, a world class team that strives off of synergy and collaboration, a robust approach to challenges within and outside of Environmental Health and a bestowment from the Lord to continue doing His great work and allowing Him to use us as the vessels necessary to deliver in the best way we possibly can.

We shall continue to support businesses in the best way we know how. We shall continue to change the landscape of small business in our sector. We shall continue to serve, serve, and serve our community, give back as part of societal, and community contribution #schoolfurnitureddonationdrive coming soon. We shall continue to build strong partnerships.

From the Enviroswitch Team...HAPPY NEW YEAR.
